On the evening of 16th inst, a man named Louis Young was arrested for drunkeness and locked up in the station house where he slept all night. He complained next morning of a pain in his breast. Mr. Sam. McKeague who was in charge of the station, immediately sent for Dr. Hutchinson, who arrived at the conclusion that the man would be all right when the effects of the whiskey he had been drinking should pass off. The man complained of great thirst and when the Doctor again visited him at 11:30 A.M., munity. As soon as the embargo on passenger be ordered a dose of castor oil to be given him. traffic to the other islands is taken off, he intends to At 4:30 when Dr. Hutchinson again visited him make a tour among them, stopping for a short time | he found the thirst still continued and on the man asking for a cup of tea, it was ordered for him. As the boy who took the tea to him was holding him up to allow him todrink, Young suddenly stretched out and died immediately. A post mortem examination was made yesterday by Dre. McKibbin and Emerson, who report as follows  Externally a large contusion was found on the right side over the 7th and 8th ribs, on opening the chest, the right pleura was found to be filled with blood and the 7th rib was found to be fractured about its middle, causing rupture of the intercostal artery which produced the latal | Cats, 12; cents per pound; Veal, 16 cents per pound. The Wells troupe, or 'California Company'

of actors have closed their performances at the Music They deserve high commendation as public FOR SALE BY entertainers. They have associated our beautiful new Music Hall with some fine impersonations in the dramatic art. They were, each and every one, painstaking and studious artists; and observed a propriety and good taste, in every representation, which satisfied Honolulu society, and that is saying a good deal. And when we say, that many representatives from our old missionary families attended the performances, we are giving an assurance, that this company won a popularity here, not only as instructive and entertaining artists; but also as estimable ladies and gentleman. We would like to particularize the merits of each member of this company, had we space and opportunity. We cannot do so; but we gladly say in the way of brief mention, that Mr. Wells is an tility; as shown in the Marble Heart and the Two Orphans. Mrs. Wells or Miss Long is sprightly, easy and attractive in all her performances. Her orphan in the "Two Orphans" was a chef d'ouvre. orphan; and her representation of Pocahontas, and the Princess Badroulbadour always delighted her audience. As the "Two Orphans" occupies a prominent place in our memory of dramatic representations at Music Hall, we must now mention Miss Allen, who disclosed remarkable artistic ability in her impersonation of La Mere Frochard. Mr. Wilson is a careful student of his part, and satisfies his gudience with his faithful impersonations. The broad and hearty humor of Mr Crosbie has established him as an especial favorite with our theater goers. Mr. Francoeur is an artist who leaves marked impressions. His " clevare," and " yaas, yaas," with his Dundreary style and tone in the Marble Heart, will be catch words among our people for a long time to come. Miss Fleming, Mrs. Closson and Mr. Gregory came later under our observation, and in their performances left the impression of studious, painstaking artists. We may sum up, by repeating what we have often said before, that every member of this dramatic troupe performs his or her part well They have satisfied the Honolulu public, and were growing in favor at every representation; and would we feel assured receive some bumpers of benefits, could their engagements warrant their stay; or until a return of more healthful times would permit the unrestricted assemblage of our people. They were obliged to close their performances at the Music Hall by order of the Minister of the Interior on account of the small pox epidemic.

A Chapter on Life Insurance--A Sacramento Institution.

Probably nothing shows the progress of the world in social science during the last century more conclusively than does the full development of the principle and practice of life insurance. Before the regular mortality at different ages had been accurately ascertained, and in connection with interest tables, made life insurance almost one of the exact sciences, the crude attempts in that direction were speculative gambles, or what was hardly better, a contribution box seheme where the most generous and benevolent were the losers and the sordid and selfish the gainers; those who paid longest being those who suffered at the inevitable collapse. It is impossible to over estimate the good done by life insurance during the last century. The hundreds upon hundreds of millions disbursed have saved countless families from separation-widows from starvatiou and orphans from lives of destitution and crime, and been a lasting honor to the dead, who showed their care for their loved ones by the frugality and self-denial that left its rich legacy. Of them it can be said, "Their works live Prominent among the institutions of Sacramento, and one that has a most excellent reputation for responsibility and conservative management, not only at home, but in all the Pacific States and Territories, is "The Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California." It was organized in 1867. At that time the Pacific Coast was flooded with life insurance agenc es, representing almost every company in America, most et them strong and trustworthy, but some of them speculative aud ephemeral, as proved by subsequent ovents. For many years California has been shunned by life companies. It was ought in early days that the peculiar conditions of life or this const were unfavorable to longevity; that privations and exposure, the fever of speculation, the fluctuation of fortune, the absense of homes, the scarcity of the elevating element of romen, all combined to make the tenure of life more precarious than elsewhere in America. It is only about fifteen years since the managers of Eastern companies realized that circum-stances had changed, and that California was the natural home of wealth and a most inviting field for life insurance, but when they did, they came as a tidal wave. It was the golder age for solicitors, for to ask a man to insure was to receive his application. It is estimated for several years the sum of if not quite two millions of dollars was annually withdrawn through agencies from this coast, to be invested and controlled in the Eastern States. It was at this time that some of the business men of Sacramento saw that this drain from the State should and could be prevented; that in this State, where epid-emics are unknown and where capital could be invested as safely and more profitably than in any other State in the Union, was an opening for a sound, conservative, prodently man With them to think was to act, and the Pacific Mutual en tered upon its ca eer of usefulness. Prominent among its founders were the energetic and farseeing men who inaugurated, and, in spite of indifference and opposition' successfully completed the trans-continental railway. The Pacific Mutual bas gone quietly on its way, attacking no other companines and indifferent to assaults, keeping its obligations and paying its losses. It has paid nearly one million of dollars in death losses, and another million to policy holders in endowments. dividends, etc., in many instances these payments representing individual accumulations that otherwise would never have existed. We venture to say that in the not distant future, the Pacific Mutual will be as inti-
